IELTS Writing TASK 2

Some people think that watching movie is a waste of time.

Do you agree or disagree?

A fair amount of people presume that enjoying movie, or other forms of entertainment, is a wastage of priceless time. However, other schools of thought claim that movies are full of excitement and we ought to spend substantial amount of time outside of our regular monotonous rubric of life. I support the latter one.

To begin with, time is precious, so time should be better spent otherwise. For example, people can focus on career progression: skill development to keep up with the competition of the world. In addition, watching movies could turn into an addition, deteriorating the social and personal lifestyle. Nevertheless, people tend to watch movies to escape from the exhausted city life. Example can be seen in enjoying TV series or movies in the big screen with the family members, leading some quality time together. Consequently, it is a nice way to escape from the reality. After all, we do not usually go to war every day, and come back to our palace at night. We just go to the boring school, come home and do some homework.

Moreover, if movie-goers, over the years, did not pay a visit to the theatre – where they spend some quality time - they would have ended up an isolated pattern of life. Iron man from Marvel Cinematic Universe or Shutter Island assisted audience to uplift their feeling to a new horizon, eventually declining the exacerbated pace of life due to exorbitant pressure from not only the workplace but also the family life.

To conclude, it seems fallacious to assume that movie watching is a wastage, rather watching the box should be encouraged to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of day-to-day work, regardless of personal or professional arena.
